WASHINGTON, October 2.

TREASURY DISBURSEMENTS.

The disbursements of the Treasury on account of the different Departments, during the first quarter of the current fiscal year, were: War Department, $16,857,498; Interior, $12,130,350; Navy, $3,032,965; total, $40,430,791.

APPOINTMENT.

General Couch was yesterday notified of his appointment as Collector of the port of Boston.

SANTA ANNA'S MISSION.

The mission of Santa Anna here was to convince our administration that the Church party is the only one in Mexico which can establish a firm Government there in case of the downfall of Maximilian. Mr. Seward is understood to be a believer in this theory, and to have urged upon the President the propriety of giving some encouragement to this wealthy and conservative faction. The Santa Anna party have nothing to do with the Mexican Loan scheme, which would be repudiated by them should they come into power. The proposition to guarantee that loan will be again pressed by a powerful lobby at the next session of Congress.

A. JOHNSON STILL CREDULOUS.

While the Conservative Republican supporters of the President here now can hardly admit that their movement has been a failure, and that the fall elections will result in a complete overthrow of the Johnson party, the President himself, trusting more and more the counsels of original Democrats, to the exclusion of the few former Republicans who still linger around him, is led by them to believe that the elections will result favorably for his policy, and is fondly looking forward to fifteen or twenty thousand majority for Clymer in Pennsylvania, to be followed by a still more signal success in New York. Every Copperhead office seller who would put the President in a good humor gives a couleur de rose version of the Johnson prospects in his State or district, that being the surest road to the attainment of their object.

A. J.'S PARTIALITY FOR COPPERHEADS.

Mr. Johnson is therefore growing cold toward the Conservative Republicans, who are at feud with his Copperhead friends, and who sometimes tell him unpalatable truths. Thurlow Weed, for instance, returned to New York thoroughly disgusted at the result of his last visit here.

HE IS JEALOUS OF GRANT'S POPULARITY.

There is also a jealousy springing up between the President and General Grant, Mr. Johnson having at heart been furiously enraged at the marked popular preference for Grant which was displayed during his western tour. In the recent appointment of field officers in the regular army, General Grant's recommendations have been repeatedly ignored, and the vacancies filled with the candidates of Copperhead politicians. It is even said that the only appointment of a paymaster which was recommended by the General has been refused.

GENERAL LEE'S HOUSEHOLD EFFECTS AT ARLINGTON.

WASHINGTON, October 2.—The [illegible]

[illegible] divisions is a guarantee for the peace of the continent, and is neither a peril nor an injury to our nation. France, with Algeria, will soon number 40,000,000; Germany 37,000,000, of which 29,000,000 will be in the confederation of the North, and 8,000,000 in that of the South; Italy with 26,000,000 and Spain with 18,000,000, what is there to disturb us in this division of European power? An irresistible power—can we regret it? It impels the people to unite themselves in grand masses and is causing the disappearance of secondary States. This tendency springs from the desire to place general interests under the most efficacious of guarantees. Possibly it is inspired by a kind of providential foresight of the destinies of the world.

While the old populations of the Continent increase slowly in their restricted Territories, Russia and the Republic of the United States each may, within the next 100 years, number 100,000,000 of men. Although the progress of these two great Empires is not for us a subject of solicitude, while rather we applaud their generous efforts in favor of oppressed races, it is the interest of the nations of Central Europe not to remain broken up into little States without either force or public spirit.

The circular proceeds to demonstrate that the Emperor was right in accepting the part of mediator. On the contrary he would have disregarded his high responsibility of violating the neutrality promised, and proclaimed he had plunged into the risks of a great war, one of those wars which arouse the hatred of races, and in which whole nations meet in conflict.

The Government, continues the circular, comprehends annexations dictated by the absolute necessity of uniting to a country populations having the same manners and the same national spirit. It can only desire those territorial aggrandizements which would not affect its powerful cohesion, but must always labor for its moral and political aggrandizement, using its influence in behalf of the great interests of civilization. Nevertheless the results of the late war teach an important lesson, and show the necessity which exists for the defence of our territory and for perfecting without delay our military organization. The nation will not fail in this duty, which cannot be regarded as a threat by any.

In conclusion, the circular considers the political horizon to be free from any threatening contingencies, and expresses a belief in a lasting peace.

Heavy rains and long continued high winds have inflicted serious injury upon the crops in most of the agricultural districts, both in England and Ireland; in the moorland regions the loss will be particularly heavy. The crops remaining in the fields having sprouted and become discolored so that they will, it is feared, only be fit for cattle feeding, while the standing crops have rotted at the bottom and also sprouted. Barley, oats, peas and potatoes even, have all experienced more or less damage.

From Scotland the reports are uniformly unfavorable, and the same observation applies with even greater force to Ireland.

The Annexation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce recommended unanimously the adoption of the bill for the incorporation of Schleswig-Holstein with Prussia in the following form: The Duchies of Schleswig-Holstein shall be united to the Prussian monarchy pursuant to Article 2, of the Prussian Constitution. The other paragraphs were passed as proposed by the Government, a resolution being added by the committee urging the introduction as speedily as possible of a bill for the annexation of the Duchy of Lauenburg. The law for the election of representatives for the North German Parliament was passed September 26th, by the House of Deputies. First—A Parliament is to be assembled for the consideration of the Constitution and of the regulations of the North German Confederation. Second—Every man blameless in the eye of the law who is a citizen of one of the German States united in the Confederation, is to be a voter as soon as he has attained the age of twenty-five. Third—From the right of voting are excluded: first, persons who are under guardianship or trusteeship; second, persons against whose property rules of bankruptcy have been granted, during the term of such bankruptcy; third, persons who obtain support as paupers from the funds of the State or of their District, or who have obtained such support during the year preceding the election.

The Dutch Chambers were opened on the 17th. The King announced that the financial condition of the country was satisfactory.

The Times admits that the agitation among the Khan subjects of the Ottoman Empire begin to bear all the appearance of a preconcerted national movement, but remarks that if anything like a general European complication were to arise out of this state of things, it would be due to secret agencies, of which we as yet know nothing, but which have far other objects in view than the furtherance of the interests of Greek nationality.

The Avenir National mentions that it has received a telegram from its private correspondent at Berlin stating that on the occasion of the execution of Karakasoff, on Saturday last, for attempting the life of the Czar, popular demonstrations took place, in consequence of which charges of cavalry were made, several persons were wounded, and numerous arrests effected.

The St. Petersburg Borsen Zeitung says that all preparations on the main land and the soundings in Behring's Strait, for the completion of [illegible]

[illegible] general purposes, and bay horse, gelding, for light harness. John S. Wilson, Rush County, for general purposes, a pair of matched geldings, 4 years old, a mare of the same class; span of horses for light harness, and a mare 4 years old.

The number of interments for the month of September, as reported by the City Sexton to the Council, is forty-three. The Sexton also reported that the past had been the healthiest summer for fifteen years.

The Union mass meeting at Logansport, Cass County, to-day, was a tremendous demonstration. Speeches were made by Governor Morton and Colonel R. G. Ingersoll, of Illinois.

General Carl Schurz arrived in this city this morning. He speaks at Union Hall to-night.

A telegram was received from General Fremont to-day, saying that he will certainly be here to attend the rally of the Grand Army of the Republic on Thursday evening.

Hon. Emil Preetorius, and Colonel C. E. Moss, of Missouri, will accompany him.

APPOINTMENTS.

The following appointments have been made by the State Central Committee:

General T. W. Bennett, Bedford, October 4th; Mitchell, October 5th; Shelbyville, October 6th.

General E. Dumont and Hon. R. Hamilton, Monticello, October 5th; Delphi, October 6th.

Colonel W. R. Stokes, Edinburg, October 4th.

The following despatch was received from Terre Haute this afternoon.

TERRE HAUTE, October 2—p. m.

To S. J. Peck, President Terre Haute Railroad, Indianapolis:

Large quantities of oil came to the surface of the well now being sunk on Chauncey Rose's ground, in the yard of the Terre Haute House. Mr. Rose was digging for water and oil bubbled to the surface. Mr. R. felt quite disappointed, as he was only digging for water. There is great excitement in Terre Haute. Large crowds have examined the well, and the oil is pronounced equal to any in Pennsylvania. The well is 1,312 feet deep, and the oil flows to the surface when tubed.

(Signed.) W. N. EDWARDS.

The funeral of Matt. J. Smith, son of the late Caleb B. Smith, took place to-day.

Our city police have come out in a neat blue uniform.

KALAMAZOO HORSE FAIR.

Fine Display of Valuable Stock—Yesterday's Races—An Accident—Good Attendance—To-Morrow's Programme.

[Special Despatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

KALAMAZOO, Mich., October 2.

The first day of the Fair opened with a grand cavalcade of all the horses, making a splendid display of stock heretofore unequalled. The forenoon was occupied with the examination of the juvenile classes, the members of which were handsome and well bred animals. Among the particularly noticeable ones in the class of three year old fillies, were Mollie, owned by H. F. Badger, of Kalamazoo; Nellie, owned by Lewis, of Schoolcraft, and a filly owned by Downing, of Three Rivers.

The afternoon was occupied with more exciting trials. In class No. 3, gentlemen's driving horses, to be driven in buggies, a single dash of three miles, H. F. Badger's Lady Vir[illegible] came in first, making the mile in 2:10, 2:05½, and 2:01½—total, 6:16. Buckshot, owned by Case, of Jackson, was second. Thirteen entries in this class.

At three o'clock the great stallion race, open to all Michigan stallions, speed the test, best two miles in three, was announced, and the horses were brought up, viz: Night Hawk, s. b. stallion, owned by Vankirk, of Kalamazoo; Grey Eagle, g. stallion, owned by J. D. Franklin, of Jackson; Frank Mescow, d. b., owned by Pike, of Coldwater; Mambrino Chief, d. b., owned by Fisk, of Coldwater, were the contestants.

After some scoring, they were got off, Grey Eagle leading around the first mile, but at the first quarter of the second mile, Night Hawk passed and lead home, making the heat by a length or more in 5:34½.

Second Heat—Night Hawk soon took the lead continually, opening the gap between himself and his competitor, and was forty rods ahead and not far from the winning post, when the sulky broke down, throwing his driver, Mr. Connell, under the wheels and coming to a full stop. A scene of excitement followed, the crowd rushing down to [illegible]

FROM QUINCY, ILL.

Southwestern German Methodist Episcopal Conference—Radical Resolutions on the State of the Country.

[Special Despatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

QUINCY, Ill., October 2.

The Southwestern German Methodist Episcopal Conference has been in session here since last Thursday, and adjourned last evening. Bishop Simpson presided over its deliberations. The Conference includes portions of Illinois and Iowa, and all of Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. Some 60 German ministers were present. Previous to adjournment the following was offered on the State of the country:

The Conference wishes to express, by the following resolutions, its conviction in regard to the state of our country:

1st—Resolved, That this Conference is decidedly in favor of the policy and position taken by the last Congress, and especially the adoption of the proposed Amendment to the Constitution now before the country.

2d—Resolved, That we are decidedly against the policy and position taken by the President of the United States, A. Johnson, considering it highly dangerous and injurious to the welfare and liberty of this nation.

The resolutions, being put by Bishop Simpson, were unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

The Post Office has been removed into the new Post Office building, a splendid three-story structure, and one of the handsomest in the city. The Bread-and-Butter Postmaster has not entered upon his duties owing to some hitch at Washington.

A tremendous crowd will attend the demonstration here on the 5th, if the weather is favorable. Politically everything is lovely.

FROM MORRISON, ILL.

Glorious Union Rally in Old Whiteside—The Loyal People Aroused—Great Enthusiasm—Speech of Judge Trumbull, &c.

[Special Despatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

MORRISON, Ill., October 2.

The people of Whiteside County, and other counties adjacent, were out in their strength to-day to hear a discussion of the questions before the voters at the election in November. A large and intelligent audience of ladies and gentlemen were assembled. The feeling exhibited was such as to give evidence that the people intend to put forth no uncertain sound when they act on the questions before them. The banners were expressive and ominous. We noticed among them the following: "No payment of the rebel debt;" "Every rebel is in favor of 'my policy;'" "No political rights to perjured traitors;" "This Government must be ruled by loyal men;" "Congress is vested with the power"—A. Lincoln; "I have the power to veto"—A. Johnson; "When you hear a man prating about the Constitution, spot him as a traitor"—A. Johnson; "No opposer of 'my policy' ever fired upon the flag of his country." A procession was formed under the lead of L. Culver, Esq., Marshal, and Assistants, and with the splendid cornet band of this place, marched to the grove in front of the Court-House, where the masses were addressed by Hon. Lyman Trumbull, who held the audience in rapt silence, while he dissected the false theories of the Copper-Johnsonites. At the conclusion of Judge Trumbull's speech and three rousing cheers, the meeting was addressed by Hon. E. S. Isham, of Chicago, who made a spirited and telling address, which was received with marked attention. The meeting then adjourned with three booming cheers for the Congress of the United States.

The old committee, which is anti-radical, maintain their organization, and the result of the wrangle will be two sets of tickets in all the districts. On Saturday the old committee took possession of the headquarters, and prevented the new committee from entering. Cheers were given for Fenton on the one side and Hoffman on the other.

FROM BOSTON.

Hon. Charles Sumner's Lecture on "The One Man Power vs. Congress." Four "Es"—Emancipation, Enfranchisement, Equality, Education.

[Special Despatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

BOSTON, Mass., October 2.

Charles Sumner delivered this evening, before a crowded and enthusiastic audience, the open lecture of the Fraternity Course on "The One Man Power vs. Congress." He began by reviewing, at some length, the opposing policies of the President and of Congress, touching especially upon the usurpation of legislative power by the President, his bestowal of power upon ex-rebels, and his inconsistency with himself. Answering the question "How the President fell?" Mr. Sumner gave a detailed and most interesting narrative of the early portion of Mr. Johnson's administration, from the time he took the oath of office in such a condition that his attempted speech became trivial and incoherent, and he did not know the name of the Secretary of the Navy, giving a careful report of his own interviews with the President soon after the assassination. As Mr. Sumner urged the importance of founding the new Governments in the rebel States on the consent of the governed, without distinction of color, Mr. Johnson once replied: "On this question there is no difference between us; you and I are alike." But a little later came the "commonwealth," and the President was no longer sympathetic and kindly, but harsh, petulant and unreasonable; and, when reminded of the outrages in the Southern States, he would inquire, "Are not murders sometimes committed in Massachusetts?"

Mr. Sumner said at the close of this branch of his address: "The evil he has done already is on such a scale that it is impossible to measure it, unless you measure the arc of the globe, and I doubt if in all history there is any ruler who, in the same short space of time, has done so much evil. There have been kings and emperors, proconsuls and satraps, who have exercised a tyrannical power; but the facilities of communication now lend swiftness and extension to all evil influence, so that the President has been able to do in a year what in other days would have taken a life; nor is the evil that he has done confined to any narrow spot. It is co-extensive with the Republic. Next to Jeff. Davis stands Andrew Johnson as its worst enemy. The whole has suffered but it is the rebel region which has suffered most. Passing on to what remains to be done, Mr. Sumner said: "In the first place place, Congress must be sustained in its conflict with the one man power; and in the second place, ex-rebels must not be restored to power. Bearing these two things in mind, the way will be easy. Of course, the Constitutional Amendment must be adopted. As far as it goes it is well, but it does not go far enough. More must be done; impartial suffrage must be established; a homestead must be secured to every freedman, if in no other way through the pardoning power. If to these is added education there will be a new order of things, with liberty of the press, liberty of speech and liberty of travel, so that Wendell Phillips may speak freely in Charleston or Mobile.

There is an old English play which goes under the name of the four Ps. Our present desire may be symbolized by four Es, standing for Emancipation, Enfranchisement, Equality and Education. Let these be secured and all else will follow. I can never cease to regret that Congress has hesitated, by proper legislation, to assume a temporary jurisdiction over the whole rebel region; but it is not too late. If indisposed to assume this jurisdiction by an enabling act, constituting provisional [illegible]

LAWRENCE, Kansas, October 1.

The committee rooms of the State Agricultural Society were filled this evening till a late hour, entering for the State Fair, which is to commence in this city to-morrow. The entries are already larger than of the first State Fair held in Illinois. The exhibition promises to be a complete success.

The weather was never finer, even in Kansas. The earth and air are still covered with grasshoppers. Some few immense insects, about the size of a humming bird, have been discovered in this locality. They are thought to be the Egyptian locust, and it is said follow in the wake of the grasshoppers. They are reported to be as plentiful as this miserable pest, and about fifty miles west.

Cholera Reports from Various Points.

BALTIMORE, Md., October 1.—A few scattered cases of cholera have occurred here in the last three days, several of which have proved fatal.

NEW YORK, October 1.—Four cases and two deaths from cholera were reported to-day. There are nine patients in the Battery Barracks hospital. The number of deaths in this city last week was 451, of which 35 were caused by cholera. The previous week there were 390 deaths, of which 51 were from cholera. Dr. Edmund M. Snow, Health Officer of Providence, visited the city on Saturday and made a critical survey of the cholera fields of the city, and visited all places where it now lingers. He went home satisfied that the Health Officers in this city have been dealing with genuine cholera. Its manifestations were such as to warrant all the efforts that were exerted to prevent its spread.

Deaths by yellow fever, seven, and by cholera, thirty, during the past forty-eight hours.

NASHVILLE, September 30.—Twenty-one cholera deaths last twenty-four hours. October 1, fifteen deaths.

THE GREAT DEMONSTRATION.

The demonstration last evening in honor of the Southern Loyalists was the most prodigious exhibition of political feeling that Chicago has witnessed since the great Wide-Awake procession of 1860. Not less than forty thousand people were out, thronging the streets in the centre of the city, on the line of the torchlight procession, cheering and burning gunpowder, while the buildings far and near were illuminated in the most brilliant style, giving to the streets the appearance of a continuous blaze of light. The severe wind, which swept from the lake, unfortunately extinguished the torches of a considerable portion of the procession, and thus marred the effect of this part of the demonstration. Aside from this accident the proceedings of the evening were a splendid success. In the centre of the feu de joie the Court House shone like a burning pyramid. From the basement, which glittered with lights in the windows, to the cupola which was festooned with two hundred Chinese lanterns, the building literally gleamed with fire, presenting one of the most magnificent spectacles ever witnessed. The whole city was in a blaze of glory.

This noble demonstration is at once a tribute of honor to the steadfast heroism of the loyal men of the South, and an expression of the public indignation and vengeance against the recreant President, who has turned them over to the persecution of rebels and traitors. Chicago has spoken this condemnation, and asserted her purpose to carry on the war until these men can live in their own homes unmolested and undisturbed. Chicago [illegible] that loyal men shall rule the nation—not merely the North, but every inch of United States territory. The outpouring of the people, last night, was a declaration that "traitors must take back seats in the work of reconstruction." On the 6th of November this declaration will be repeated, in an official form, at the ballot box, when Chicago will join the great shout of loyalty, which will reverberate over all the land, from the Atlantic to the Missouri.

IMPORTANCE OF AN OVERWHELMING VOTE.

Ordinarily an election is the mere choice of voters between opposing candidates, or an expression of their preferences as between the political views of the contending parties. At times the election of a member of Congress is of vast importance in determining the ascendency of one party over the other. The election in a single State may at times have the effect of deciding who shall be President and the whole political policy of an Administration for four years. But important as these elections are, their importance is as nothing compared with the elections which take place this year. In the elections this fall the candidates are of personal account only as they may be depended upon to adhere to the principles and cause they represent. The cause is everything. There is, however, now no reason to doubt that the Republican party will retain its numerical ascendency in both branches of Congress. But that is not enough. That will not suffice for the vast interests at stake. The elections this fall in every State, should be, as was the case in Maine, overwhelming, sweeping, crushing. New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Iowa, Minnesota and California, should not be content with mere Republican majorities; they should give majorities so overwhelming and decisive, that there can be no pretext for mistaking their import, or questioning the purpose of the people who give them.

The question of reconstruction depends to a great extent upon the result of the elections this fall. The question of peace or war, of loyalty or rebellion may be settled this fall by increasing an ordinary Republican majority of ten thousand to thirty thousand. The whites of the South are rebels at heart, but they are not blind nor are they fools. They can understand the wide difference between the North divided by only a few thousand majority in each State against their friends, and the North overwhelmingly and decisively opposed to them. They have no doubt as to the will and the purpose of the people of Maine and Vermont. They should have an expression of the will and the purposes of the people of all the Northern States as authoritative and as unmistakable. The effect will not be thrown away. It will crush out all hopes of another rebellion. It will exhibit to them Andrew Johnson clothed with the single power of the Executive, but rendered impotent for their purposes by the opposition of the National Congress, by the opposition of the State Governments, and by the utter repudiation of his policy by the people. He will stand before them in his true position; officially the President of the United States, but confined to the simple duty of executing the laws, and bereft, by the popular voice of any power beyond the mere official routine of his office. They will recognize him as an officer so circumscribed that upon the first manifestation by him of any interference or usurpation in matters not pertaining to his duties, he will be impeached and deposed with all the celerity the Constitution will permit, and with a popular rejoicing never before witnessed. They will rely no longer upon a reed they [illegible]. They will shrink from an alliance with an Executive as impotent for their purposes as their own helpless Executive now pining in Fortress Monroe. Let the majorities this fall be as large as the Union men should make them, and there will be no more threats of a Dictator, and [illegible]

[illegible] with Andrew Johnson in place of Jeff Davis at its head, and the whole war for [illegible] Union to be fought over again. Let Illinois by fifty thousand majority, and that majority is attainable by a vigorous effort, proclaim that the Constitutional Amendment shall be adopted before the people of the rebel States shall again have their Senators and members in Congress, and the proclamation will be so distinctly heard and understood by the people of Mississippi and Louisiana, that they will not fail to accept it as final and decisive. That is the way to address these rebels. That is a language they can understand, and language which with the experience of the late war, they will not fail to respect and obey.

The Amendment must be adopted this winter or the controversy must be carried over to the Presidential election of 1868. There is no doubt as to the wishes of the vast majority of the people. That Amendment, so far as it imposes conditions is now in the mildest form in which it will ever be presented for rebel acceptance. If that be rejected by them, then there will be other and severer terms imposed. The country is tired with the obstinacy of these rebels. They plunged the nation into civil war, and subjected it to a vast debt, and now they keep the country unsettled, keep alive public excitement, threaten a renewal of the rebellion, and generally assume the airs of conquerors, instead of men who have, by their treason, forfeited all.

The country demands that the war be brought to a close. Congress with great liberality has proposed terms of immediate adjustment. Under the advice of Johnson these rebels refuse to accept them, and have appealed to the people of the North. Let the appeal be answered with an overwhelming response. Let the nation declare that that amendment must be adopted, and that no threats of an internecine war, no threats of a Dictator, no threats of a suppression of Congress, can alter the fixed, inexorable decision of the people, that the war must now be closed, and upon the terms proposed by Congress. The importance of this election, therefore, is not confined to the mere choice of a majority in Congress; it can have a more extended significance. It will declare to the rebels what the people want, and what must be done. It will settle all questions, and leave the rebels no choice but to accept the terms finally and close the matter forever, or of becoming outlaws and outcasts from the heritage of freedom. If these people will not accept the terms thus ratified and endorsed by the North, then they may expect no further consideration. They may expect to be treated as they will have chosen to be treated, as alien enemies of the Union, entitled to none of its privileges save those which the mercy of the laws may extend to them.

DICKEY'S SPEECH.

The Republican party contends that the loyal people of the United States, acting through Congress, have the right to prescribe conditions precedent to the admission of the rebels to a participation in the Government. The Copperheads deny it. They contend that the rebels never lost or forfeited their rights to seats in Congress, or to hold Federal office, or take part in a Presidential election. Judge Dickey in his Carbondale speech tried to make a point against the Republican party, by quoting and citing various laws and resolutions passed by Congress, and proclamations issued by the President during the war, which indicated their willingness to let the rebels resume their former relations with the Government, provided the rebels would cease their efforts to destroy the Union, voluntarily lay down their arms, and return to their allegiance. We are astonished at the absurd deductions which Dickey attempts to draw therefrom. It is true, and no Republican desires to conceal or deny it, that every possible offer was made by President Lincoln and Congress to coax the rebels back, in order to stop the frightful effusion of blood and treasure which a prolongation of the war would necessitate. The rebels were offered everything save the surrender of the Union; but they, encouraged by the fire-in-the-rear of the Copperheads, would accept nothing less than an unconditional concession of their independence. This was their ultimatum. The Government would gladly have received them back any time before January 1st, 1863, with slavery, and perhaps even assumed the payment of their war debt, and reimburse them for damages to property done by our armies, and recompense them for the loss of escaped slaves. While the war raged dubious and doubtful, with the Government enduring a cross fire from insurgents on one side and Copperheads on the other; when the strongest hearts grew faint and fearful and no man could confidently predict the issue of the bloody struggle, it is no wonder that Congress and the President held out every possible inducement to the rebels to cease their assault on the Union and return to their allegiance. We all remember how the Copperheads clamored for more concessions and larger offers to the rebels than the Government had made. In the years 1863 and 1864, Judge Dickey had quit the army and was home from the war consorting with Copperheads and peace sneaks, going about the country making harangues denouncing the war party, abusing President Lincoln, and calling for an armistice and cessation of hostilities. He also supported McClellan and Pendleton and the Copperhead State ticket on the peace-sneak, white feather platform adopted by the Chicago Copperhead National Convention.

But look at the sequel of the matter. After the Government had offered those liberal terms to the rebels which Dickey now cites against the Republican party, the insurgents, acting under Copperhead advice, spurned them, and demanded unconditional independence. The Republican party had no course left to pursue, but with the "war Democrats" and loyal blacks to continue the struggle to the bitter end.

But because Congress held the doors wide open, and besought the rebels to quit fighting and come back, and promised to forgive them, and to exact no conditions precedent, it by no means follows that Congress had not the authority to exact terms and impose conditions on the traitors who had absconded and seceded, and were then striving with all their might to overthrow the Constitution and the Union. The Government had the same authority to insist on severe terms of admission that it had to tender the easy terms cited by Dickey. The rebels were then in a condition to be parties to an agreement. They were recognized as belligerents; they were organized, with official and responsible chiefs; they were in possession of one-third of the territory and population of the Union. They were intent on establishing an independent Government, and for the first three years of the war other nations were confident of their ability to achieve it. The Copperheads of the North were also confident of it, and daily proclaimed their belief that the rebellion could not and ought not to be put down; and Dickey belonged to that party, and supported its nominees. He, too, believed the war a "failure," and the independence of the rebels an assured thing.

But the war went on. The dauntless Republicans, in spite of the bitter and discouraging opposition of the Copperheads, and the adverse opinion of the world, persevered in the tremendous task. When the first-born fell, the second and third sons were sent to the field to fill up the ranks [illegible] on the assault. At last, by sheer force and unceasing battle, the rebellion was broken into fragments, and the fragments pounded into dust. But the traitors fought until half of them were slain and the other half seized by force, disarmed and pinioned. The rebellion was put down as a tiger is captured—by being first half killed, and then bodily overpowered and tied by the legs. The rebels refused all terms and conditions. They prolonged the contest while a man or boy could stand up to fire a rifle or thrust with a bayonet. The Confederacy was unconditionally suppressed and destroyed. It was blown to pieces by gunpowder, and its defenders hewn down by swords. There were no "rights" left to the traitors but the right to be hung. According to the laws of war they forfeited everything—lives, property, rights and privileges. They had sinned away their day of grace; they were rebel prisoners of war, captured in battle. Their captors had the right to shoot down every man of the rank and file and hang the leaders. It is the absurdest stuff in the world to talk about "their Constitutional rights in the Union." They have no rights left. All they possess—life included—depends on the grace, mercy and magnanimity of the victors who captured them. The loyal people, speaking through their Congressional agents, have the incontrovertible sovereign rights and authority to dictate and exact whatever conditions precedent to admission they choose to prescribe. They may make the terms lenient and easy as they have done, or severe and just as they might do. The loyal people derive this authority from the laws of war, from the right of self defence, from the right to save and maintain the Union and punish its assailants; from their duty to preserve and defend the Constitution itself, from destruction.

If the doctrine of Dickey and the Copperheads be correct, that States may secede at pleasure and while waging war for the destruction of the Union, may keep their Senators and Representatives in Congress to stop legislation against them; to prevent [illegible] the rebel forces finished the work what would such a Union be worth? What would a Constitution that allowed such things to be done, be worth? Not the parchment on which it is written.

The question before the country is not whether the Union shall be restored; the Union is already restored, thanks to the army and navy and the Republican party. The Democratic rebel Confederacy is crushed, and the seceded territory and the secessionists thereon, are recovered and reclaimed, and are within the jurisdiction of the Government. But the question is, shall the rebels and their Copperhead allies be allowed to control the Government and dictate a policy to those who saved the Union? or shall loyal men, whose blood and treasure saved the Union, have the right to prescribe to conquered rebels the conditions on which they shall participate in the Government which they failed, with the aid of Copperheads, to destroy?

AN UNPLEASANT SCENE.

We have referred, once or twice, to the fact that Mr. Wentworth, our Representative in Congress, was incapable of attending to his public duties during the most important hours of the last session, by reason of drunkenness, and that he brought odium upon his district and his party by exhibiting himself in such an unseemly state. Many people doubted our statement—some believing that we were actuated by personal malice toward Mr. Wentworth, and others deeming it impossible that he could have so far forgotten the dignity of his office, to say nothing of his duty to a sober and intelligent constituency, as to be guilty of such conduct. On Monday evening, at the public reception of the Southern Loyalists, in the Tremont House, Mr. Wentworth confounded his friends and justified his enemies in so signal a manner that we are at a loss for a parallel to the exhibition which he made of himself, unless we find it in the conduct of Andrew Johnson on the day of his inauguration as Vice President. Mr. Wentworth was intoxicated in a very public place, and behaved in a very offensive manner. He was seen and heard in this plight by thousands, who now have the evidence of their eyes to go upon. If there were any place or any time when he should have been sober this was, of all others, the place and time, for in addition to the intrinsic importance of the occasion, Mr. Wentworth was, as it were, on his good behavior. He was appealing to his constituents to disbelieve and deny all stories prejudicial to him by re-nominating him for Congress. The fact that he could not keep sober under such circumstances might well lead to the conclusion that strong drink has at last acquired the mastery over him.

We are not disposed to ride a temperance hobby in the present campaign, but there are certain degrees of shame which our city and district shall not incur without being duly warned. The First Congressional District of Illinois is the most populous district in the Union. It is the wealthiest one in the Northwest, and is certainly as respectable, in everything save its Representative, as any other. It has a character to maintain abroad as well as interests to be looked after in Congress. We ask any man, whatever may be his own habits, or standard of morality, whether he believes that Mr. Wentworth, after the Monday night performance, is a suitable person to represent Chicago in the National councils. If anybody says yes, we would beg leave to inquire what would be deemed a disqualification for the office.

In demanding a change in our representation in Congress, we do not assume to be better than our neighbors. But, looking at the matter as we look at the ordinary concerns of life—knowing that no business man would employ a person of Mr. Wentworth's habits either to do business for him, or to represent the dignity and character of his house—we are at a loss to know upon what principles gentlemen can desire to make him the business agent of the whole people, and the representative of their aggregate dignity and character.

INDIANA.

The fiercest political campaign ever waged in Indiana is the present canvass. More meetings have been held, more speeches delivered, bigger crowds have convened, longer horse and wagon processions by day, and torch-light processions by night, and more personal zeal, activity and acrimony have been exhibited on both sides, than in any previous political campaign—not excepting the famous 1840 contest. The Copperheads have put forth super human efforts, backed up and supported by the traitor Johnson with Federal patronage and recruited by the bread-and-butter brigade. But notwithstanding the tremendous efforts of the copperjohns we are confident of a glorious Republican triumph. Cheering news comes to us from every part of the State. Our friends actually hope to make a clean sweep of the Congressional districts. They are making a tall fight in the First and Second, which compose the Egypt of Hoosierdom, now represented by two Knights of the Golden Circle, Kerr and Niblack, both candidates for re-election, whose districts each gave 2,100 and 2,300 Copperhead majorities two years ago. But the Republicans have faith that they can overcome those large adverse majorities. General Gresham, a gallant one-legged soldier is running against Copperhead Kerr, and Judge Denzler against Niblack. The closest fight in the rest of the State will be in the Third, Fourth and Seventh Districts. The Copperheads are making desperate efforts in Colfax's District and also in the Fort Wayne District, but their work will be in vain. We shall feel greatly disappointed if the Republican majority in the State does not exceed that given for Lincoln in 1864, which was 20,000.

☞ "Among the 'Southern Loyalists' who started 'on the track of the President' was an 'exile' from Virginia, named C. C. Flint. This gentleman was once editor of the Chicago TRIBUNE, of this city; but was obliged to leave on account of having forged a good deal of bank paper."—Times.

The above has appeared in the reconstructed rebel concern several times. Some twelve years since, before any of the present proprietors of the TRIBUNE were connected with it, C. C. Flint was a hired writer on this paper, but was discharged therefrom for Know-Nothing proclivities in the spring of 1855. He afterwards was employed on the columns of Mr. Wentworth's Democrat. Having "forged some bank paper," he was discharged from that concern, the overseer remarking to him that, as several persons connected with the Democrat had already been sent to the penitentiary, he did not care about retaining his services any longer. From Chicago, Flint went back to "Old Virginia," where he was born, and turned "Democrat," which he has been ever since. Since the close of the war, he has edited a copper-rebel paper in Norfolk, Va., and was a warm and zealous supporter of my policy. He held office under Johnson at the time of committing his last forgeries. He was one of Johnson's bread-and-butter brigade; and the reconstructed concern lies when it says that "just previous to this occurrence, he was one of the deputation of loyal Southerners on the track of the President." The other Flint, who was formerly an editor of the Times concern, has long been the Washington rebel correspondent of the reconstructed concern.

☞ The Confederate organ republishes a stale slander on Governor A. J. Hamilton, which has gone the rounds of the rebel and Copperhead papers. The only basis for the falsehood is, that a lewd fellow of the baser sort was arrested in a Washington house of ill-fame by the police, and when brought before the Police Magistrate gave his name as "A. J. Hamilton." It is a common trick of pimps, blacklegs and thieves to give an assumed name for the purpose of concealing their own patronymic from the public. This is done in the police courts of every city, every day. But what shall be thought of the indecency and malignity which attempts to fasten upon the pure name and fame of the loyal and brave Governor Hamilton, of Texas, this miserable libellous charge?

☞ This is a bad year for gentlemen of the turf. A few weeks ago one of the owners of the horse Dexter was shot by his mistress. A few days ago the driver of Butler had his brains dashed out on the Chicago Driving Park. The telegraph now informs us that a celebrated horse trainer on the Centerville Course, Long Island, has been found on the track with a bullet hole through his head.

"THE TAILOR AND HIS GOOSE—JOHNSON AND DOOLITTLE." This was one of the inscriptions on a transparency borne in the great procession last night. Mr. Doolittle, by the way, speaks in Chicago this evening in behalf of "my policy."

☞ The New York Herald calls the Pittsburgh Convention the "Blue Mass." It will undoubtedly put the Nation's liver in good condition, and will clean out all such impurities as Copperheadism.

SKETCHES OF THE BOHEMIAN BATTLE-FIELDS.

Scenes in a Depot—The Knights of John—Prussian Braggadocio—Bohemian Baggage Carriers—A Bohemian Inn—The Town of Pardubitz—Its Ancient History—Appearance of the Place—The Military Occupation.

[From Our Special Correspondent.]

PARDUBITZ, (Bohemia), August 31, 1866.

The Austrian railroads, traversing the theatre of the late war, have not yet been able to recover their former regularity in the running of trains. The Prussian authorities, although they turned over the roads some time since, still claim the right of using them whenever and however they like. Whenever a number of sick or wounded are collected at a station, they stop the first passenger train that comes along and load it with the disabled human freight. This practice, of course, renders a strict adherence to time-tables an impossibility. Thus it happened to me at Brunn, that I had to wait two hours beyond the regular time for the Vienna train, which I intended to take for this point. To wait for a delayed train is always annoying and tiresome. But fortunately there were lively scenes in the Brunn depot, the observation of which fully filled the hours of detention. There were crowds of Prussian officers and men of all arms, with whom it was not difficult to engage in conversation. Then there were hundreds of sick and wounded standing and lying about the various platforms. Men and women with the badges—a red cross on white ground—worn by all the representatives of the nations that have joined the Geneva Convention, were acting the part of Samaritans and distributing wine, beer, soups, and other eatables, tobacco and cigars, and books and newspapers among them. Nearly all the attendants had come all the way from Prussia, and comprised Sisters of Charity, representatives of half a dozen more religious orders, and volunteers from all classes of society, from Counts and Barons down to humble servants and laboring men. I ascertained that the main depot of the Knights of John, a charitable Prussian order composed exclusively of noblemen, for Moravia, was in the principal building of the station, and thither I made my way. I found a very intelligent and communicative student of theology in charge. He explained to me very cheerfully the modus operandi of his establishment. It is evident that the Prussians have very closely studied and imitated the glorious precedents in deeds of charity of our Sanitary and Christian Commissions. He showed me vast quantities of bandages, lint, shirts, drawers, pillows, slippers, preserved fruits and vegetables, wines and liquors, beer, cigars and tobacco, and other articles, that had been gratuitously contributed from every part of Prussia, all ready for distribution [illegible] covered with bright sheet-metal, shining far and wide so prominently that to this day there is a Bohemian proverb: "It is as bright as the steeple of Pardubitz." The lords of Pardubitz had a great fondness for fisheries. They established thirty-six large ponds within a range of twenty miles from the town, whose principal trade was for centuries in fish. The period of decadence commenced with the great insurrection of the peasants in 1775, when the town was attacked, captured and sacked by the enraged serf population. The abolition of the greater portion of the countless monasteries that then existed in Bohemia, by the Emperor Joseph II., and the emancipation of the inhabitants under his liberal rule from the bigoted practice of observing almost every other day as a fast day, resulted in a greatly diminished demand for fish, and also contributed much to the decline of the town. At the present time the trade of Pardubitz consists mainly in fire-wood and building timber, cut in the extensive adjacent forests, and rafted down the River Elbe, which skirts the town. The old castle of the Lords of Pardubitz still remains, though in a somewhat shattered condition. It is one of the greatest feudal curiosities in Bohemia. In it is shown the room in which the enraged peasants, in 1775, committed an original act of barbarous vengeance upon a bailiff of the ruling Seigneur, who had made himself particularly odious to them by habitual cruelty. They stripped him naked, poured all the ink they could get hold of over him, and then rolled him in sand until his whole body was fairly incrusted. In this condition they mounted him on an old nag and hooted him out of the castle and town. In ordinary times the castle is occupied by pensioned Austrian officers, but now a hospital flag floats over it, as over nearly all the other seats of the nobility in Bohemia, and it is filled with cholera-stricken Prussians.

OCCUPATION BY SOLDIERS.

Pardubitz, like every other town in the province, has suffered remarkably from wars in by-gone times. Not only in the servile insurrection, already mentioned, but also in the Thirty Years' and Seven Years' wars did the place fare very roughly. But its annals have hardly recorded severer trials than those it underwent in the early days of last month. The distance to Sadowa, Jicin, Koeniginhof, Nachod and Skalitz not being over from eighteen to thirty miles, the inhabitants were terrified by hearing the sound of the heavy guns in all the affairs at those various points. On the memorable third of July trees and houses fairly shook, as with an earthquake, with the tremendous report of the thousand pieces of artillery at work in the great battle of the war. Already the affairs at Jicin, Koeniginhof and Nachod had inflicted upon them many hundreds of wounded. Before noon on the fatal Tuesday of last month thousands of disabled Austrians had been brought from the scene of action. The first intelligence of the disastrous result of the day was received by the town-people through a perfect hurricane of panic-stricken teamsters, who whirled through the streets with thousands of teams in headlong flight. Next came a sorry host of tens of thousands of Austrian infantry, cavalry and artillery in chaotic confusion—all footsore, crestfallen, hungry and thirsty, but bent more upon seeking safety in a hasty, disorderly retreat, than anything else. If but half of [illegible] around Sadowa, volunteered his advice as to my future movements. He assured me I would do best to start in a carriage from where I was, instead of waiting for the uncertain train to Koniggratz, from which it was almost as far to Sadowa as from Pardubitz. He offered to get me a good conveyance and an intelligent driver, who had already driven parties over the field. After some reflection, I concluded to do as he advised me, and I went to rest with the satisfaction of knowing that I would get away early in the morning.

FROM DETROIT.

Visit of Foreign Commissioners—An English Editor Expected—The Political Campaign—Brilliant Union Prospects—Gen. Butler Coming—Influence of the Press—Sporting Matters—Theatrical—[illegible] Troubles.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

DETROIT, October 1, 1866.

We have recently been visited by agents of the French and Russian Governments, employed by their respective foreign offices to examine into and report upon the local governments—particularly of counties and towns—and the popular school system of the United States. Viscount Chabrol, of the French Foreign Office, and Mr. Kapnist, of the Russian Bureau, have each already traversed a number of our Northern States, collecting information for the use of their employers, and each of these express the most ardent admiration of the simplicity, but admirable efficiency of our local and municipal systems—outside of great cities—for the government of country townships and small villages, and more particularly of our system of common schools, in which Michigan claims, with some justice, a pre-eminence over most of her sister States.

We expect the advent in the Northwest of Mr. Walter, member of the British Parliament and chief owner of the London Times. Mr. Walter has, as you doubtless know, already left England for the United States, with a view of obtaining, by personal observation, a better insight into the American character and American politics; and, we learn, from private sources, that he will, before returning to England, visit and particularly observe the growth and political character of the great Northwest, with a view of storing up information for the paper in which he is chief stockholder, not alone for use in dealing with American questions and military questions, but more particularly for use in the great discussion which has begun in England, and which he foresees will be for the next eight or ten years the leading question before the British public and in Parliament, and the formidable issue upon which the British administration and Government policy will hinge—namely, the question or questions of reforming the laws and Constitution of the British Empire. Whichever side of the present or future reform measures the Times [illegible] authorities. This feeling is so strong among the militia, that a very slight faux pas on the part of any officer, in case of invasion, would be likely to produce a general panic and stampede.

OUTRAGE AT PHILADELPHIA.

A Gang of Ruffians Attempt to Seize an Assessor's Books—They Attack and Fire Upon Citizens, Severely Wounding a Number.

[From the Philadelphia Press, September 29.]

An infamous and bloody outrage occurred last evening in the southeastern section of our city. It has not even the mitigating circumstances of revenge or rapine attending it that prevailed in some of the horrible murders we have had of late, but it was a cool and determined attempt to shoot down men who had given no offence, and for no cause save that they belonged to a political party of their own choice and in whose principles they had faith.

The Assessors of the Second Ward held their place of meeting at the house of Chas. Peak, southeast corner of Moyamensing avenue and Federal streets, and last night was the last meeting prior to the election. There was no difficulty at the place of meeting, and the books were closed at the time required by law.

The public house of James Falby is situated at the northwest corner of Moyamensing avenue and Federal street, and is frequented by the Copperheads of that section. During the evening a crowd of well-known characters from the Fourth Ward were noticed at Falby's house, and trouble was apprehended. Alderman Tittermary informs us that he saw a man named Washington Hamilton, the same who figured in the Harmer homicide, and on approaching him said to him he hoped there would be no disturbance, whereupon Hamilton turned and fired while the Alderman had his hand upon his shoulder, and John Shaffer fell to the ground.

Lieutenant Fuller, of the First Police District, informs us that he was standing on the southeast corner of Moyamensing avenue and Federal street, when he saw the flash of a pistol from the house of Falby. He ran across to the northwest corner, at which Falby's house is situated, and saw Washington Hamilton run in the house. When he got on the pavement Hamilton came out again and fired several shots, Lieutenant Fuller receiving a ball in the arm, near the elbow, which passed entirely through the limb. He went to the door and demanded the man who shot him. By this time a crowd was rushing towards the house, and the Lieutenant turned and proclaimed that he would protect the house from violence, at the same time calling around him the few officers present. Just then some forty shots were fired upon the windows and doors of the bar-room of Falby's house. He then, in connection with Sergeant Alexander and Policemen Mitchell and Tucker, attempted to make arrests and succeeded in arresting Washington Hamilton, Polyard E. Degan and Nicholas Gwin, and getting them safely to the Second District Station House. The parties injured by the discharge of the firearms are John Shaffer, constable of the Twenty-sixth Ward, whose head and face are peppered with No. 9 shot. He was removed to the residence of his brother George, No. [illegible] Moyamensing avenue, and when we left Drs. T. S. Reed and G. W. Nebinger were picking the shot from the head. His eyes are badly injured, and it is feared he may lose the sight of one of them at least. Charles Anderson, Jr., was shot in the right eye, and removed to his residence, in Reed street, above Wheat. A man, whose name we could not learn, was shot in the heel, and another in the hip. A citizen states that he heard Hamilton say, when he came out of [illegible]

[illegible] have the best of us, but we will show you that you haven't," and then he fired. From conversation heard by this gentleman, he is of the opinion that the attack was made for the purpose of seizing the assessors' books.

At the station-house it was discovered that Degan was cut in the side of the face, near the right ear, very badly, and that he also had several wounds upon his head. Dr. Reed dressed his wounds. It is supposed they were received at the hands of the exasperated citizens who were so ruthlessly fired upon. Officer Mitchell was seized by the neck by Degan, and in endeavoring to release the hold some of Degan's friends beat the officer over the hands, inflicting painful injuries.

THE MEXICAN QUESTION.

What the French People Think of the Imperial Convention—The Expedition a "Bad Business," and "No Economy with the Wrecks of the Undertaking."

[From the Opinione Nationale (Prince Napoleon's Organ,) Sept. 15.]

The convention with Mexico, published in the Moniteur of yesterday, although signed by M. de la Valette, Minister ad interim, has been in reality concluded by M. Drouyn de L'huys, since on the 30th of July the latter had not yet resigned. This convention, we regret to say, seems to fall short of the object aimed at by the two Governments, and contains elements of danger and complications to which we believe it to be our duty to call public attention.

This treaty concedes to France half the receipts of the Custom Houses of the ports located on the Gulf of Mexico, and a fourth in all the ports of the Pacific Ocean. If the concession is but a fourth of the receipts in the harbors of the Pacific, it is because the other three-fourths are already mortgaged, so that the Mexican Government will not get anything from these ports. It will not get much more in the Gulf of Mexico, because if we are to receive fifty per cent, forty-nine per cent being already conceded as a guarantee to the Spanish-English debt, there will remain one per cent; that is to say, the equivalent of nothing to the Mexican Government. Now, the Custom Houses having been the principal part of the revenue, the question occurs, what will the aforesaid Government have to live upon hereafter? This, of course, is a question which we will not undertake to solve.

There is another circumstance worthy of notice. The Convention allows us fifty per cent of the produce of the Custom Houses in the Gulf of Mexico. Now, out of the three principal ports located on the Gulf, Matamoras, Tampico and Vera Cruz, two, Matamoras and Tampico, do not any longer belong to Maximilian. Tampico, especially, fell into the hands of the Juarists on the 1st of August, the day following the signature of the convention. Must we conquer it again?

If, as everything goes to show, Maximilian is compelled to abdicate, what will be the value of the present convention to the succeeding Government?

But the point, undoubtedly the most defective and dangerous of the treaty of the 30th of July, is the disposition contained in article five, stating that

"The collection of the duties, mentioned in article one, will be made at Vera Cruz and Tampico by special agents placed under the protection of the flag of France."

This arrangement alone would be sufficient to make us condemn the treaty. With this article nothing is ended. Vainly shall we have re-embarked our troops and brought them back [illegible]. Our flag remains, that is to say, France is still engaged. Abandoning the soil of Mexico we have upon [illegible] the germ of our complications and perhaps a new expedition.

If Mexican agents had been intrusted with the collection, we would have but [illegible] risk, the certainty of not being paid. This would certainly have been a misfortune which was, however, susceptible of being appreciated, estimated and reckoned.

But the position which is made for us by this treaty is far more serious, because it conceals a certain peril, unknown in its form, unlimited in its bearing.

Can, in fact, the position of the Custom House officers we shall leave in Vera Cruz and Tampico after the withdrawal of our troops, be easily imagined? Who will protect them? Is it Maximilian? But if he could not keep Tampico, how will he protect the agents we will leave in that city?

And if Maximilian abdicates, will the Government which will take his place, and which will find the exchequer empty, leave quietly the French Custom House officers to pocket half the revenue of the Custom House in virtue of an agreement they will not have signed nor acknowledged?

On the other hand, shall we permit our agents, placed under the protection of the French flag, to be insulted? Shall we allow the funds which belong to us, in virtue of the convention of the 30th of July, to be seized in their hands? But if we have no more troops in Mexico, how shall we protect them? After having recalled one army shall we be compelled to send another?

All this, it must be seen, is perfectly impracticable; it is the rock of Sisyphus; it is the Danaide's hogshead; it is a vicious circle in the midst of which we shall perpetually turn, imagining every day to put an end to an undertaking which we will be compelled to renew the next day.

We must have the courage to confront bad situations; the Mexican expedition is a bad business. The greatest want of France is not to economize upon the wrecks of the undertaking; it is to do away with it at once and forever, be the cost 500,000,000, 600,000,000, or 700,000,000; this is in our eyes a very small consideration when compared with the immense freedom of action which would follow a radical settlement. Our intervention in Mexico weighs heavily upon our European policy, and has raised clouds between the United States and us. Why? For what object? What do we hope to-day? Nothing, is it not? Well, let us end it at once for all; and if [illegible]

THE SOUTHERN LOYALISTS.

Yes, we have given a little evidence at New Orleans, [illegible] Memphis. [illegible]

[illegible]

SECOND STAND.

The second stand was presided over by the Mayor of C[illegible] Hon. J. B. Rice. After the music of the band had ceased, the Chairman addressed the multitude as follows:

INTRODUCTION BY MAYOR RICE.

A month has elapsed since a large number of our citizens met at Philadelphia. That Convention was composed of bodies of men from the North and the South. Each party was to act independently, or together, as they might deem best. They are anxious to consider how we shall reconstruct our country on a firm and lasting basis. [illegible] We have many Southern friends who have come from the States lately in rebellion, and we want to hear from them. They will tell you what they know; and you can add your knowledge to theirs, in working out the problem of reconstruction. I will now introduce to you the Hon. Horace Maynard, of Tennessee.

HON. H. MAYNARD.

Mr. Maynard stepped forward, and spoke substantially as follows:

Mr. Mayor and fellow-citizens of the State of Illinois, of America: Thank God the time has come when we can, from all sections of the country, address each other as fellow-citizens. The disturbances in our social, personal, and political relations are passing away.

Talk not to me of North and South, and distinct and unfriendly peoples. I meet everywhere the men of Tennessee, and we have been scattered broadcast all over this country. Everywhere I can now say fellow-citizens of the United States. [Cheers.] [illegible]

[illegible]

The speaker closed with an eloquent appeal to the loyal masses of the North to do their duty to themselves and to their friends in the South at the coming election. He retired amid great and prolonged applause.

The meeting then adjourned.

[illegible]

I appeal to the loyal hearts of this nation to settle this fact at the coming election: that this is a nation of freemen, and shall be so maintained. [Loud applause.]

Judge Patterson, of Tennessee, was next introduced.

SPEECH OF JUDGE PATTERSON.

I happen to be from that portion of the State of Tennessee so hard to conquer by the rebels. I have to appear before the people of Chicago. Your hearts are right as well as your heads. While you have been building this great city, you have been raising great men and women.

The people of my section are the remains of a race of pioneers, and their love of country is so great that they could not be conquered by the rebels.

There was a Convention that met at Philadelphia on the 14th day of last August. [illegible]

[illegible]

I would call your attention to this question of party lines in my State. We have only two parties down there, loyal men and traitors. [A voice, "We have just the same parties here."] [illegible]

[illegible]

We regret that the President did not visit us at the capital of Tennessee. [illegible]

[illegible]

THIRD STAND.

ADJOURNMENT.

General Palmer now declared the meeting adjourned at this stand, and a large portion of the audience left, with enthusiastic cheers for the loyalists and the loyal Congress.

Mr. Pollock, of Virginia, however, mounted the stand, and managed to run a meeting on his own account [illegible]

sweeping over the narrow park, from the lake, rendered the air excessively chilly and unfavorable to a public meeting. [illegible]

THE EVENING DEMONSTRATION.

The demonstration in honor of the Southern Loyalists, in the evening, exceeded any ever before witnessed in Chicago. Language is inadequate to describe it. The adjectives usually employed on such occasions are weak and almost meaningless in this connection. To say that it was "grand," "glorious," "magnificent," does not express it. The whole city, yes the people of Illinois, were out, to bid the men who have been true to the flag in the Southern States welcome to the Garden City and the great Prairie State. [illegible]

THE PROCESSION.

[illegible]

Among the Evanston inscriptions were the following:

[illegible]

WELLS STREET.

The passage into Wells street was like a march into darkness. [illegible]

[illegible]

Messrs. Wm. B. Keene & Co. gave forth their show in the shape of circles in the windows. [illegible]

A. G. Downs & Co. presented many fine transparencies and lights from their windows. [illegible]

[illegible]

THE UNION CLUB HOUSE.—Twenty-seven signatures were obtained by our person, yesterday, to the call for a Union Association similar to the great Union League of Philadelphia, and almost every signer said, as he heard the form of agreement, "That's what we want, and what we must have." [illegible] The whole delegation of Southern Loyalists, fresh from visiting the Union League House in Philadelphia, [illegible] have framed and signed the following paper, expressing their great gratification upon learning that a similar project has been set afoot in Chicago:

We, the undersigned, members of the delegation of twenty-five from the Southern Loyalists Convention, personally acquainted with the Union League of Philadelphia, and its plan of operations, take great pleasure in testifying to our sense of the vast good which it is rendering, and will yet render to the Government, as against both its armed and unarmed enemies. We record also our delight in learning that a movement has been begun, aiming at a similar organization in the patriotic city of Chicago, and we heartily commend the movement to the support of all our fellow-loyalists of this great political centre, who would so consolidate their strength, as to strike the most vigorous and effective blows for the cause of our common country.

GENIUS TRIUMPHANT.—We call the attention of our readers to the mammoth advertisement of Mr. Delight, the well-known inventor of the world renowned Spanish Lustral, and the Prince of Tonsors. He has retaken the splendid establishment originally opened by him at 122 Washington street, opposite the south door of the Court House, and is fitting it up in a style of still greater splendor than that which marked its first gorgeous days. Hair-dressing, shaving, bathing, etc., may now be enjoyed in the highest style of luxury, at the place where first the people of this city saw Eastern tonsorial magnificence transplanted to the West. Mr. Delight will still carry on his recently taken establishment under the Matteson House, a place inferior only to the Palace per se. [illegible] known. Mr. Delight will now be able to supply it in greater quantities than ever, and to pay more attention to the manufacture of this almost miraculous appliance for the hair.

A COLORED MAN DROWNED.—Yesterday morning, about half-past eleven o'clock, while the propeller Niagara was lying just above Wells street bridge, and intending to start directly for Muskegon, a quarrel arose between Timothy Soper, one of the mates, and Augustus Golden, a colored deck hand. They were on the deck amidships, and got into high words regarding the alleged claim of Golden that the mate owed him a balance of sixty cents. The mate pushed Golden from him, it is stated, and he fell over the guards into the river below and was drowned. Soper was arrested and taken to the Central Station. The body of Golden was recovered, and the inquest will be held at ten o'clock this morning.

THE SAENGERBUND.—One of the most attractive features of the reception of the Southern Loyalists on Monday evening, was the singing of the German Saengerbund. This fine organization, under the leadership of Otto Lob, was out in full force, and discoursed most eloquent music. The thanks of the committee and the Republican party are due to them for their voluntary and unified effort to contribute to the eclat of the occasion.

SUPERIOR DASH CHURN.—One of the very best articles on exhibition at our late State Fair was the churn entered by James O'Donnell, of Clinton, Ill. It is simple, clean, easily worked, cannot get out of order, and throws out the butter in a solid mass in an incredibly short space of time. It is probably the cheapest churn in the market. The inventor is at the City Hotel for a day or two, exhibiting the churn, and of him State and county rights may be obtained on very favorable terms.

MARRIAGES IN COOK COUNTY.—The number of licenses issued during the week ending Monday morning, was seventy-nine, including two [illegible]

[illegible]

CHILD KILLED.—A little son of Wm. Connor was run over yesterday morning, about half past eight o'clock, by a street car, at the corner of Rucker street and Blue Island avenue. He was playing about the track and slipped under the wheel of the car, which passed over him, killing him instantly. A Coroner's inquest held last evening resulted in a verdict of accidental death.

FIRE.—At one o'clock this morning, a saloon and boarding house, occupied by R. F. Smith, was partially destroyed by fire. The damage was about $800. A man named Pat. O'Donnell was arrested while in the act of stealing cigars from the saloon.

MERCANTILE BATTERY.—A meeting of the members of the Chicago Mercantile Battery, will be held on Wednesday evening in Parlor No. 1, Briggs House, at 7½ o'clock. Every member is requested to be on hand.

ACCIDENT.—A little son of F. Bailey, who resides at No. 190 West Lake street, a lad of eight years, was run over by a lime wagon on Sunday morning about eleven o'clock, and had a foot crushed and a thigh very badly hurt.

FIRE.—The house of a Mr. Balse, situated on Division street, a little east of North Clark street, caught fire a little after noon yesterday, and was damaged to the extent of about $100. The alarm was given from box No. 194.

PERSONAL.—William Blair, Esq., has returned to the city, after a lengthened absence in Europe. He is in good health and apparently much recuperated by his travels.

THE HANLONS give their last entertainment in the Opera House to-night for the benefit of Mr. Warren, the worthy Treasurer. We trust he will have a full house.

SPEAKING.—Lieutenant Governor Bross will speak at Laporte this (Wednesday) evening, and at Valparaiso, Indiana, on Friday afternoon.

CHOLERA.—Eight cases of cholera were reported at the Health Office yesterday, of which two were fatal.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Chloasma and Lentigo.—Chloasma and Lentigo are the medical terms by which certain discolorations on the face are designated. Chloasma is popularly known as moth-patches or liver spots; Lentigo as freckles. There are many preparations in the market, soaps, lotions and pastes, all claiming the virtues to cure or remove moth and freckles, but they have proved such decided failures that the people are skeptical, and disbelieve in the efficiency of any preparation for the cure of such discoloration. But there is one preparation that never fails—it is infallible—Perry's Moth and Freckle Lotion. It effectually removes these blemishes, without injury to the skin in texture and color. Sold by all Druggists, and by Dr. B. C. Perry, 49 Bond street, New York.—New York Sunday Times.

What more can be desired to the sufferer from Asthma or Consumption than the assurance that Marsden's Pectoral Balm has never failed to relieve and cure. To make assurance doubly sure, he has instructed his agents to refund the amount in any instance where it fails. For sale by all druggists. Schieffelin & Van Schaack, Wholesale Druggists, wholesale agents, 16 Lake street, Chicago.

Colgate's Aromatic Vegetable Soap.—A superior Toilet Soap, prepared from refined Vegetable Oils, in combination with Glycerine, and especially designed for the use of Ladies and for the Nursery. Its perfume is exquisite, and its washing properties unrivalled. For sale by all druggists.

Metcalfe's Great Rheumatic Remedy is the most wonderful remedy ever brought before the public. A gentleman of this city who had lost the use of his limbs, and has used crutches for over six months, has been completely cured by one bottle. Tell your afflicted friends to try it. ## FROM LIVINGSTON COUNTY.

Rousing Meeting at Pontiac—Speeches by Hons. S. M. Cullom and William Smith.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

PONTIAC, Ill., September 29.

The people of this town and vicinity were entertained last evening by the Hon. S. M. Cullom with a masterly speech of about two hours. It was one of those telling efforts which he has often delivered since the opening of the present campaign. He thoroughly dissected and laid bare before the people, the "damnable doctrine" attempted to be enforced upon the loyal people by Andy Johnson and his cohorts of rebel abettors. Mr. Cullom fully explained the advantages that the loyal people both North and South would derive from the adoption of the Constitutional Amendments as offered at the last session of our Congress. The people of this county are full alive to the facts as enunciated by the eloquent appeals of the speaker. The people attest this by the applause which everywhere greet the champions of our cause. Mr. Cullom's speech closed amidst the profoundest applause.

As soon as the storm of applause had somewhat subsided, Hon. Wm. Smith, of Lexington, McLean County, was called to the stand. This gentleman held the overflowing house for about one hour "spell bound." Mr. Smith is one of those peculiar kind of speakers who have the faculty of saying just what they feel, and the power to impress others with their own truthful convictions. "Democracy as it was and now is," was his particular theme. As he dissected this rotten party the meeting became wild with excitement. The speaker was several times compelled to stop speaking to allow the people to give vent to their appreciation of his peculiar style of showing up Democracy in the wildest bursts of applause. It was a well-timed hit, and all acknowledged that Mr. Smith's exposure of Democracy as it now is, is the best "come down" on the bread-and-butter brigade that this county has witnessed since the celebrated sell of the Copperheads and "Greasy Dean" by "Howard" at this place in the Fall of '63.

The meeting of last evening was a complete success, when compared with that held here a few evenings since under the auspices and diction of the "army contractors, gold gamblers, &c.," Messrs. Fowler, Goodell & Co. They had speeches in the afternoon and evening. There was not to exceed one hundred and fifty persons present at the close of their evening meeting. Three cheers were proposed for "Andy Johnson," but not a solitary cheer was given in response. The Copperheads are completely cowed in this county, while the Union men are sanguine and jubilant everywhere. You may set old Livingston down for at least one thousand majority for the Constitutional Amendments and the "Boys in Blue."

RADICAL.

GOVERNMENT STOCKS—Quiet and without decided change.

FREIGHTS TO LIVERPOOL—Firmer.

STOCKS—Better.

[illegible]

The Commercial's money article says: Wall street continues excited. The gold market shows a renewal of upward speculation. During the apparent weakness of the past few days, an important short interest has been drawn out, which this morning furnished a basis for the sharp advance. Gold has been usually active both for cash gold and loans, the difference between cash and sales being ¼ per cent. The clique however were sellers at the advance, but intimations are thrown out that a still further rise is to be anticipated. The decline of 3-8 at London has favored the advance.

Foreign exchange is in sympathy with the decline in London. Sales of bills are limited and the demand for to-morrow's steamer is light. Leading drawers are asking 109¾ for sixty days sterling, but prime bills are sold out of second hands at 109⅝.

The excitement in stocks continues. The upward tendency still prevails, and at the Board the leading stocks were again higher. After the Board there was a slight reaction produced by sales to realize, mostly made by parties outside the Hall clique. Money is without change. There is a good inquiry from brokers, owing to the large amount of stocks changing hands, which is generally had at 4 per cent. Exceptions on call are reported at 5 per cent. Discounts show rather more activity, the rate on prime paying 5 and 6 per cent.

The dry goods trade opened this morning excited and active, at a considerable advance in heavy goods from prices yesterday. Trade seems to have been a little more checked from yesterday's prices.

Bierstadt's Great Painting, entitled

"THE YO SEMITE VALLEY,"

Valued at Twenty Thousand Dollars. A magnificent Landscape, about 6 by 11 feet in size. Now on exhibition at the Gallery of the Association in Cincinnati.

No mere description can do justice to this glorious painting. The Galleries of the Association in which it has been exhibited have been crowded with enthusiastic admirers from its first appearance in the West. For those who have not seen it it may be well to add that the above estimate of its value is not exaggerated. It could be readily disposed of, for cash, at a discount of 20 per cent from this price.

Cropsey's great work, entitled

"AN AMERICAN AUTUMN,"

Valued at six thousand dollars. A glorious Autumnal Landscape, about 5 by 10 feet in size, and the original from which the chromo-engraving, printed in colors exclusively for the Association, is taken. This fine work is on exhibition at the gallery, No. 625 Broadway.

This great painting represents the wondrous tinted and gorgeous American Autumn.

Schussele's great National Painting of the American authors, entitled

"WASHINGTON IRVING AND HIS FRIENDS,"

Valued at five thousand dollars. This magnificent work of art is about 7 by 10 feet in size, and the original from which the superb steel engraving, to be issued to shareholders, is engraved. It is now exhibiting by the Association in Cincinnati.

The value of this noble painting will yearly increase. It represents an interior view of Irving's Library at Sunnyside. In the centre of a group of fifteen American literary celebrities is seated the amiable and unassuming Irving. Around this genial sun the artist has traced the principal stars of our brilliant literary system.

Hart's charming and celebrated painting of American scenery entitled

"WOODS IN AUTUMN,"

Valued at five thousand dollars. A splendid painting—size about 7 by 10 feet.

Constant Mayer's celebrated painting, entitled

"RECOGNITION,"

Valued at five thousand dollars. A large historical work—the story of a battle field. Size about 5 by 12. Now exhibiting by the Association at Louisville.

An affecting and touching episode in the late fearful struggle in our own country. One brother finds another dying, as night is gathering over the battle field. They have joined different sides in the contest; and the dramatic power of the situation, with its fearful sublimity, is as forcibly as it is simply expressed.

Beard's Great Western Landscape, entitled

"DEER ON THE PRAIRIE,"

Valued at four thousand dollars. Size about 5 by 10 feet. Now in the Crosby Art Gallery.

One of Beard's most important works. The deer are nearly life-size, the landscape wide and atmospheric.

Gignoux's Magnificent Landscape, entitled

"ALPINE SCENERY,"

Valued at four thousand dollars.

This is one of those magnificent Alpine landscapes of which Regis Gignoux has so fully caught the inspiration.

MARBLE BUST OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

—executed in the purest Carrara Statuary Marble, by L. W. Volk—the only bust of Lincoln modeled from life—and the best likeness which we now possess of the lamented President. The bust was originally executed for the Paris Exhibition, and we trust that it will yet be sent there. If it should, we have little doubt that it will at once rank with the best work of living sculptors.
